Playground marking decision

The School Council reps came prepared with their books to share what their year groups had said and voted on for which playground markings they would like.

Unfortunately, a number of our school council reps are ill at the moment. However, we did have their feedback from when they discussed the playground markings with their year group and so we could come to a conclusion as to which options were the favourites across the school.

The dartboard was popular for all year groups because all ages liked the idea of the number targets (preferably both dartboards options – one with the numbers on it and the one looking like a traditional dartboard). The snakes and ladders was the favourite from the youngest classes because they could create other fun games with it and the netball court was most favoured by the older children because it would provide lines for other sports too. So these were the ones agreed to tell Mrs Fitzgerald to purchase.

There was also feedback about the hopscotch markings – although many of the children liked these, it was felt that we already had something like this on our playground which is still able to be used, and it was worked out that the budget wouldn't stretch to having one of these too.
